WORTHLY-WAREHAM

A very pretty autumn wedding occurred last Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 at the residence of L. F. Wareham on Lower Main street, when the marriage of his daughter, Mildred Esther, to Lawrence Worthly of Bradford was solemnized.

The parlor was decorated in green and white and the dining room in pink and white.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. D. Pierce of Craftsbury, a former pastor of the bride, and the impressive double ring service was used. The couple was attended by Miss Alice Mills, a cousin of the bride, and Irwin Worthly, brother of the groom. The bride's gown was of white embroidered net and she carried white carnations. The bridesmaid wore pink net over silk and carried pink chrysanthemums. Miss Doris Denio of Hyde Park presided at the piano and in addition to the wedding march softly rendered "O Promise Me" during the ceremony.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served in the dining room.

The gifts were many and beautiful, consisting largely of linen, cut glass and silver, in addition to which was a large, handsome leather chair and $125 in gold and currency.

Mr. and Mrs. Worthly left during the afternoon for Boston. The bride's going away gown was of Belgium blue. After a short trip they will be at home at L. F. Wareham's and Mr. Worthly will continue his work with the firm of Riddle Bros. Their many friends extend heartiest congratulations.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Worthly, L. M. Worthly and Miss Mildred Worthly of Bradford, Mrs. S. W. Howard of Concord, Miss Florence Cushman of Oxford, N. H., Mrs. Harold Chase, Mr. and Mrs. Carmi Brush, Ed Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Will Chase, Clifford Chase and Lillian Chase of Cambridge.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

During the last week the board of the "Johnsonian" has made comprehensible, workable lists of all the alumni and ex-members of the school. The work was a large one, but it was done thoroughly. The board, as finally selected, is as follows:—Chellis Collins, business mgr.; Wilbur Barrows, ass't business mgr.; Harold Parady, editor-in-chief; Miss Alice Mills, art editor; Grover Fletcher, locals; Holmes Mobbs, literary; Miss Alice McFarland, alumni; Lloyd Fullington, athletics; Miss Alice Andrus, exchanges. The first number is to be issued the first week in January. Regular subscription price, 75c; new subscribers this year, 50c.

A debate on the question, "The State of Vermont Should Limit the Working Day to Eight Hours", was held at the assembly room last Tuesday evening.

METHODIST CHURCH

The ten days' special services held under the direction of Evangelist Lewis E. Smith ended Sunday evening. The people turned out from 55 persons at the opening service to about 200 at the close. A wonderful trio of meetings were experienced on Sunday. On each occasion a most beautiful and impressive altar service was held. Altogether, between 70 and 80 persons of varying ages, came forward and knelt to confess the Christ as their Saviour and King.

The two men's meetings, which were held on the Sunday afternoons, were features of the campaign. Nothing like them have been experienced in the community before.

The results of the campaign cannot fail to be of lasting good to the whole community.

Next Sunday afternoon a young people's meeting will be held at 8:30 o'clock.

A considerable portion of the foundation has been rebuilt and set in cement. It is planned to continue further improvements in the spring.

SACRED WHITE ELEPHANT

A white elephant is regarded sacred in Siam, and when one dies it is a funeral grander than that accorded to princes. Buddhist priests officiate and thousands of devout Siamese men and women follow the deceased animal to the grave. Jewels and offerings representing much wealth are buried with the elephant.

PROHIBITION INVADES CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS

The citizen has some constitutional rights which no legislature or congress may invade. The Declaration of Independence holds that "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" are among the inalienable rights of men. The articles of confederation declare them entitled to "all the privileges and immunities of free citizens." The fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States declares that "no state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States."

A state-wide prohibitory law would prohibit by law the sale of alcohol or alcoholic liquors for any purpose, thus restricting the constitutional right of a citizen to supply a proper demand in his own household.

RESTRICTS PROPER USE OF ALCOHOL

If the proposals of the Perry referendum are enacted into law, it will be illegal to purchase alcohol or alcoholic liquors in the State for any of the following purposes:

For use in the liberal arts
For use in nursing or medicine
For use in scientific experiments
For use as a stimulant for feeble or aged people
For any use whatever, under any conditions whatever, if purchased in the State of Vermont

Alcohol has a proper place in medicine and is prescribed by reputable physicians every day. Yet prohibition would make the filling of such prescriptions a crime. On the other hand it permits the manufacture and sale in quantity of hard cider, one of the most insidious, demoralizing alcoholic beverages manufactured under any law, well calculated to destroy manhood and moral fibre.

The proposed law is inconsistent, seeks to abridge personal rights, and privileges, and has never proved to be efficient. The people of Vermont would better adhere to

MORRISVILLE 6-WOLCOTT 2

An interesting and exciting game of base ball took place Saturday at 2 p. m. on Capt. P. A. Hollenbeck's meadow back of Pottersville. The struggle was between the local team and a nine composed of students from Peoples Academy of Morrisville. For ten innings it was neck to neck, the score standing 2 to 2, but in the eleventh P. A. gained four runs which ended the game.

JOHN SAW THE LIGHT

AND THE WEDDING BELLS RANG IN DUE COURSE.

Fact That Mollie Had Much the Best of the Situation May Have Had Something to Do With His Decision.

It is three years since the report of the ease with which wealth could be acquired in this country reached John Doe's ears in Europe and lured him across the broad Atlantic. To the questions of the immigration inspectors at Ellis Island John Doe answered that he had been twenty-three years in this world; that the blessedness of the married state had never appealed to him, and that he could eke out his existence by plying his trade as a clockmaker.

His first year in American John Doe devoted to earning and saving every cent he could, picking up English meanwhile. The second year found him starting out in business for himself and meeting with marked success. The third year a general strike occurred among the clockmakers and the manufacturers had a hard time to pull through.

The strike found John with a large batch of unfilled orders contracted for at the lower rate of wages. When the workmen had won their strike for higher pay and returned to work John discovered himself facing bankruptcy and he cast about him for a means to save what he could out of the wreck.

Mollie was an exceedingly pretty girl. Even John, whose thoughts were devoted to ways and means for making money, noticed this fact, and now as he racked his brain for a scheme to save something from the oncoming storm he looked reflectively at Mollie where she sat working at a sewing machine, and a plan suddenly occurred to him. Why not pretend that he was engaged to Mollie and give her valuable presents of jewelry in honor of the fictitious event, and when the bankruptcy had blown over reclaim his property and start up again with the money thus spared?

When first she heard of it Mollie demurred at being a party to such a project, but upon John's offering her a substantial consideration she consented to undertake the role of temporary fiancée. John then presented her with several pieces of diamond jewelry, such as a ring or two, a lavalliere and earrings, and to make the engagement seem more plausible he fitted out a flat with nice furniture.

After the bankruptcy took place John was forced to testify to the various presents he had made to his fiancée, and the court thereupon ordered that all the jewelry be turned over to the receiver in bankruptcy. As to the furniture, the judge held that it was personal and household property, and as such exempt under the bankruptcy act.

In the course of time John's case was completed and he was free to start over again. Accordingly he determined to sell the furniture he had bought for his supposed bride-to-be, but by this time Mollie had become so attached to the furniture and so reconciled to the thought of getting married that she refused to give up the property. John was in a quandary.

"You promised to return it to me when I bought it and put it here," said John, as he looked around the cozy little flat.

"But all my friends think we are really and truly going to be married soon, and if I return it to you and we don't get married I may never get another young man. If you are going to break off the engagement you should at least leave me the furniture so that I will have it for a dowry when I do get married."

John looked at Mollie and she was really good to look upon.

"I was only fooling you," said he with a smile. "Come, let's get married right away."

In Our New World.

The immediately and directly consequential effects of the European war on the trade, industry and finance of the Americas are more or less apparent to all. Its moral effect, the quickening of national and individual conscience, is likewise apparent to many thoughtful observers; but we are apt to lose sight of the fact that another quickening is being felt in the industrial world, throughout all the western hemisphere, and that is a better realization of the verities of national existence, a fuller
